

The pantomime at Bramley is always a fun event not only on the stage but with the audience participation as one of the highlights. This year the enthusiasm of the cast, the crew, the helpers and audience was an example of the best in amateur theatre - everyone did their best and enjoyed themselves. As usual with this society the costumes were in the capable hands of Carolynn Dickinson (who was an excellent baddy, Vermina Queen Rat), the scenery (constructed by the Society) was colourful and efficiently changed. The company were well drilled with the reactions of the youngsters a delight to behold. The Pied Piper (Katie Evans) was beautifully dressed and played an excellent flute. The rest of the cast played with great concentration and enjoyment singing and dancing their way through the traditional story which helped to make the audience have a very entertaining evening.
